(12:44) – slide 7, after "So what we're seeing here is that we're getting more and more conservative, using the t distribution."

1. Which of the following describes best why we might need to the t distribution for inference?

(a)   population distribution is not normal

(b)   population distribution is not known

(c)   sample is not representative of the population

(d)   sample is not random

(e)   sample size is small and population distribution is unknown

Answers:

1. e